This is the year of the present. the beginning and end . . . Watching as our lives take shape While we, unseeing eyes turned outward, View the pagentry of changing seasons, changing hours. Does she laugh at our eagerness To change the world When we are trapped by the heritage we may not forget? Or does she, too, rebel Against the necessity of backward glances When there is the urge to go forward?

I am movement, the fickle moment
That exists today, but not tomorrow.
I am the song of youth, gaiety expressed in purpose . . . the very breath of living.
Excitement roars in me like a giant

Excitement roars in me like a gian.
river,

As the current of life presses ever onward.

I am thought, brief and transitory,

Turbulent and unyielding for a moment in time;

A world being born out of childhood,

Dancing in sunshine and shade,

Expressing the struggle of man

That knows not too small or too great.

I am a salt-and-pepper mood,

Tearing down old buildings and ancient traditions,

Fearing nothing.

I am the present . . .

and future tense.

I am spring in January,
Buttercups in the snow,
Breathing life into today
And hope into tomorrow.
I am the new leaf,
A suggestion of uniqueness,
The madcap moving to maturity.

Mine is the searching for stability.

Delight in looking and not finding.

I am the flame of youth's fire

Consumed too quickly.

Leaving memory-sparks

To kindle new fires.

My spirit is revolutionary.

Exchanging new values for old.

Fighting a past with a future.

The promise of tomorrow; the frustration of today.

I am ageless . . .

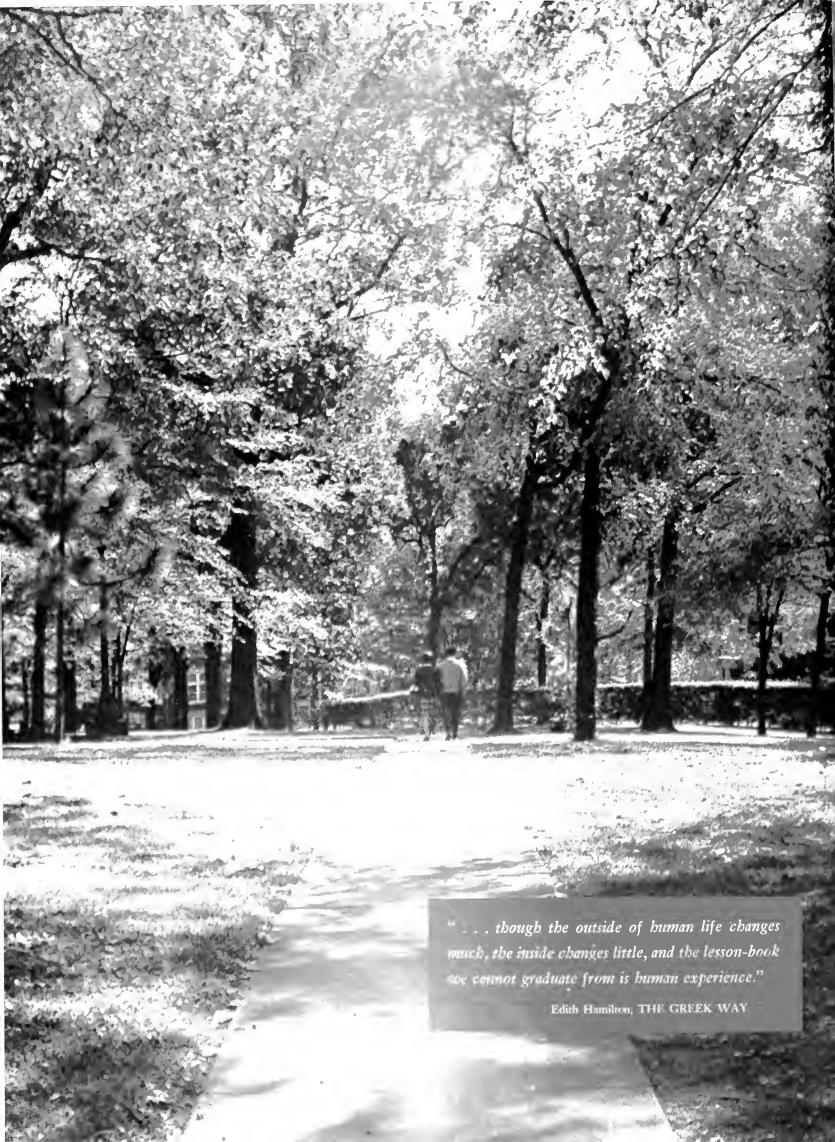

Destined to be forever young.

Dynamic in destruction.

Soon forgotten or long remembered,

I am the explosive thought

That turns the world around.

I am the total of life's experience the span of it's high and low.

I am the ever-present critic, fearing a petrified world, the mind of youth, disturbing the status quo.

Mine, too, is the voice of authority—youth grown older, the simple equation become complex.

To some I am the mind that hides in a mass of others...to you I am the transparent soul.

Today, tomorrow, and yesterday.

My essence lies in the little things of living:

The letters that sometimes come.

The long Sundays of opportunity spent staring at the trees, when only the librarian is in the library. . .

Wednesday's and convocation...

The blue books that may hold your future. . .

The cedar at Munger's corner...

Long, lonely nights of study. . .

The whistle of the 11:55 when your date must be in by 12:00...

The precious sameness of life from assignment to assignment

That allows you to lose yourself

When you do not wish to be found . . .

The walk up the hill to four walls that see dreams shattered and realized. . .

The moods of emptiness that come and go,

When there is one cigarette and many tears left. . .

The half-uttered prayer that next week, next quarter will be better. . .

The mood after tests—an urge to step off this crazy sphere for just one day.

I am the security of well-known smiles,
The heart ever-broken, ever-mended;
The ever-present balance hetween the all-important now and the onceimportant yesterday.

I am the question that has no answer,

A need never filled;

The ache to return to some quiet place in memory. . .

Seeking fulfillment in an empty room of a crowded world.

I am the stable one, changeless,

Alone with the beating of my heart.

All of these ... and none,

The composite of many faces laughing and sad.

The illusion that remains,

The reality ... past, present, future.

We will return.

The footprints of our memories once again
Will mar new-planted grass
And climb the steps of ancient Munger.
Our eyes will see
The evening fog, the leafless trees of winter.
And all our yesterdays.

Mr. Raymond Anderson

it was the days when. . . . that Birmingham-Southern decided to better its musical program why no, 'Southern hasn't always had choral groups.

the task was assumed by Raymond Anderson who was already one of the most brilliant men in his field he pioneered the choral art in Birmingham.

don't you remember when he and the choir were presented on the national broadcast from Washington. . . ? and Senator Bankhead introduced them. . . ? it was the same time they performed there for the congressional wives.

what about the Starlight Operas he directed when stars from Broadway and the Metropolitan came and with native talent put on those outdoor musicals and thousands filled Munger Bowl each night? oh, I see, well the Bowl was here when 'Southern had a football team.

but surely you're acquainted with the symphony, the music club, the song festival and the carol service? you know he has played a vital role in these civic affairs.

no, he's not directing our choirs anymore but perhaps through him you can be introduced to his old friend—music it is one of the favorite courses on campus.

mr. "A" represents, in part, the essence of Birmingham-Southern—so we dedicate this yearbook to him. . . . yet, in a unique manner he belongs also to Birmingham because he represents that in her which is truly good . . . indeed, Mr. "A" will always be a part of both.

ADMINISTRATION

Editor, Bob Gamble

These are the organizers,
The moulders of policy,
Who speak of machines,
And balancing of books,
And thoughts of great men.
The educated . . .
What do they dream about?

The Chancellor

GUY M. SNAVELY, for whom the student center is named, is remembered as a reason for the very existence of the college.

PLANETARIUM

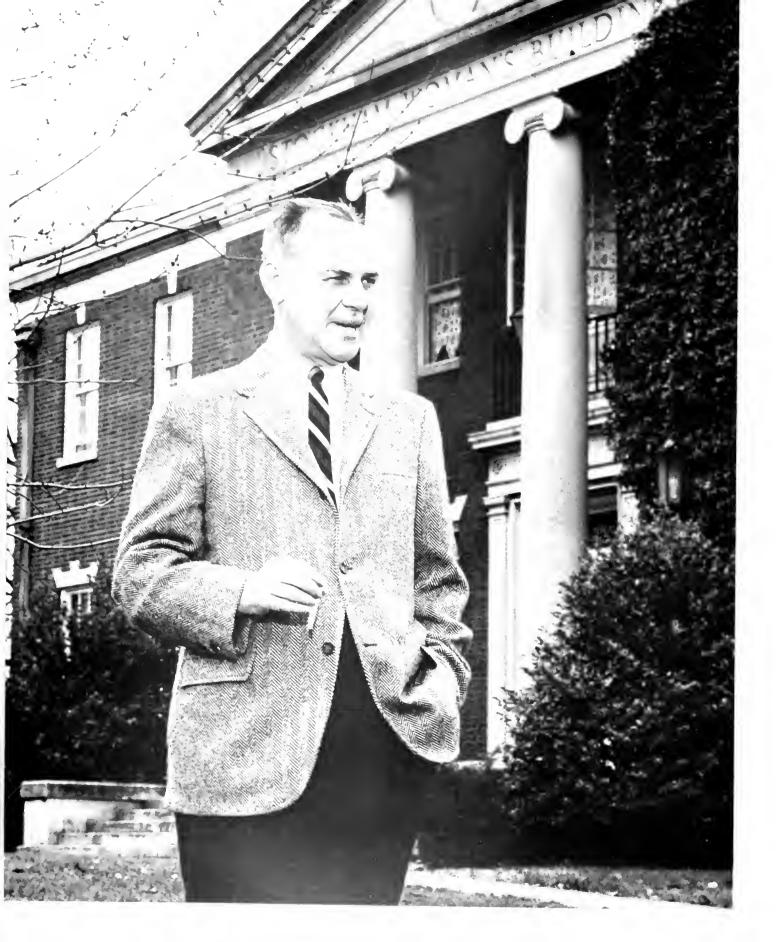

Howard M. Phillips

PRESIDENT OF BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN COLLEGE

As president of Birmingham-Southern College, Howard M. Phillips has encountered the problems common to most liberal arts colleges today. Specifically, he has faced decreased enrollment, lack of funds, and perhaps most perplexing, an attitude of apathy and discontent on the part of students. In the face of his many responsibilities Dr. Phillips sometimes escapes to one of his favorite hobbies, photography. This is a fitting hobby for one who understands development so well. While some of his proofs are still blurred, many clear prints have evolved. Perhaps the most striking new picture is seen in the positive enthusiasm of the 1964-65 freshman class.

Images of new buildings begin to take shape as Dr. Phillips talks with architects.

The Academic Vice-President

Cecil B. Abernethy, an administrator who combines executive competence with a sense of humor, is noted as a speaker and outstanding professor. He specializes in the Restoration period of England and has written Mr. Pepys of Seething Lane.

And The Financial Vice-President

Newman M. Yeilding has served Southern for thirty-eight years as bur ar, but are manager, and treasurer. As the newly-appointed financial vice-president and treasurer, he was play a key part in Dr. Phillips' ten-year plan to improve the college.

O. C. Weaver

Dr. Oliver C. Weaver, newly appointed academic dean, is first and foremost a philosopher. One can easily imagine Dr. Weaver applying Aristotle's "Golden Mean" in all his dealings with both faculty and students. In an office such as he holds, Dr. Weaver must be both realist and idealist- realist because he must deal with the very real elements of reports and letters, human minds and equally human prejudice; idealist because he must work and hope for change designed to dissolve prejudice and enable minds to work together for common goals.

Deans

Elizabeth Cothran

DEAN OF WOMEN

Even the decor of Mrs. Cothran's office provides a clue to her success as Dean of Women. Delicate Wedgewood china, suggests a refined, feminine person. And Mrs. Cothran is, indeed, a gracious person whose association with this college is an asset to it. A casual conversation with Dean Cothran does not as readily reveal her extensive background in psychology, as it does her human interest in each individual girl for which she is responsible.

With the establishment of a new quota system for fraternities and the creation of a campus police force, John A. Greaves assumed his duties as Dean of Students during a period of re-evaluation of the relationship between the student and the college. It is, of course, too early to appraise Dean Graves and the new policies which have gone into effect, but Southern students have always respected a firm, yet realistic, administrator. These two traits the student body hopes to find in John Greaves.

Mike Cram, News Bureau Director, is a professional photographer as well as a journalist.

J. Mitchell Prude, Assistant to the Treasurer, assists Ellaree D. Spear, Manager of the Bookstore, in checking out some new items.

Ben Englebert and Virginia McMahon of the Alumni Department make preparations for an upcoming event.

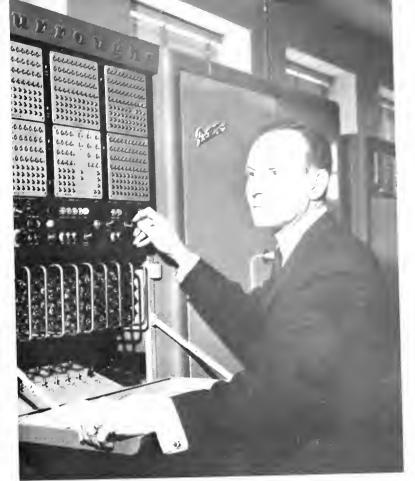

Bursar Robert Walston checks the work of his able assistants, Mrs. Godwin and Mrs. Gilchrist.

Administrative Assistants

Dr. Glenn, Director of Meyer Planetarium, presents educational shows for civic and school groups.

Dr. Robert Hites, Director of Academic Services, processes the quarter's grades with the functional new computer.

Robert Dortch, Director of Admissions, interviews a prospective student.

The library, perhaps the most essential part of the college campus, is well-staffed by Frances McLaughlin; Rochelle Crow; Margaret Hughes, Director; Paula Hudson; Barbara Moseley; Mary Varner McCall; Bernice Phelps; and Jane McRae.

Campus policemen, Lt. Scott, Capt. Golden, and Sgt. Dorobkrowski, check out their new equipment.

Administrative Assistants

Don Amason and S. King Atkinson, keep a close check on affairs in the kitchen.

Mrs. Blankley, Mrs. George, Mrs. Moss, Mrs. Truss, and Mrs. Gilbert take time off from their many duties to pose for the Southern Accent photographer.

The housemothers often get together for an informal chat. Here Mrs. Proctor shows a Christmas gift to Mrs. Latta, Mrs. Ferguson, and Mrs. Sherrod.

Birmingham-Southern's newest housemothers, Mrs. Beauchamp and Mrs. Sanders, taste some of the coffee that they prepared for the male students during final exams.

Secretaries, Mrs. Bush, Mrs. Odom, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Craven, and Kelly Girl, enjoy a mid-afternoon break.

FACULTY-ACADEMIC

Editor: Kathy Savage

They wear the trappings of the educated.

These few who open doors to knowledge

In dusty classrooms

Of timeless buildings . . .

Teaching-learning,

They come and go

Along the endless paths.

WILLIAM S. WILCOX, Ph.D., 1952, (Emory), Adjunct Professor Chemistry, past Head of the Physical Department of Southern Research Institute and professor, is also an amateur artist and writer.

WYNELLE THOMPSON, Ph.D., 1960, (Alabama), Professor of Chemistry, displays her genuine interest in students by giving them valuable personal help in chemistry.

Although modern science had its origins during the sixteenth century, there was an amazingly long induction period in its development. Science investigations were confined to the intellectual elites, to the cultured gentlemen of means; and its growth was quiet and without impact on the common man.

Education in the sciences followed the same pattern. Although the early European universities invariably housed a chair of natural philosophy, science education was not considered as essential to the culture of the times.

Since the development of quantum mechanics in the 1920's and the discovery of atomic fission in the 1930's this situation has changed dramatically. As esthetics, ethics, and religion have been the dominant preoccupation of certain eras, science has emerged as the dominant preoccupation of the present era. No longer can science be ignored or dismissed—it is now too much an intrinsic part of daily life.

Science is a genie: it can be used for the betterment or the destruction of mankind. It has radically changed the economic and social patterns of the world, and precipitated problems requiring the unified efforts of scholars in all disciplines to effect solutions.

As never before, it is mandatory that science be studied in context with the other intellectual disciplines so that its capacities may be used in an entirely beneficient manner.

Dr. Kenneth Gordon

KENNETH M. GORDON, Ph.D., 1942, (Northwestern), Professor of Chemistry, expert photographer, as well as professor, lectures on "The Art of Photography."

KATHRYN BOEHMER, B.A., 1921, (Wisconsin), provides freshmen chemistry students with a firm foundation for labs in higher courses.

WILLIAM MOUNTCASTLE, Ph.D., 1958, (Alabama), Associate Professor of Chemistry, professor and chemical engineer, is especially interested in ultraviolent absorption spectroscopy.

JAMES HARRIS PURKS, Ph.D., 1928, (Columbia), Professor of Mathematics and Physics, is well-known for his interest in students and ability to explain physics clearly.

Natural Sciences

HOYT M. KAYLOR, Ph.D., 1953, (Tennessee), author and professor, wrote "The Infrared Spectrum and Molecular Content of HF and DF," which was published in the Physics Review in 1949.

LOUISE ECHOLS, M.A., 1935, (Alabama), Assistant Professor of Mathematics has completed four extra graduate courses with the Math and National Science Institute and has frequently taught on ETV.

JAMES FRANKLIN LOCKE, Ph.D., 1933, (Illinois), Professor of Mathematics, is known for his fairness and dry sense of humor.

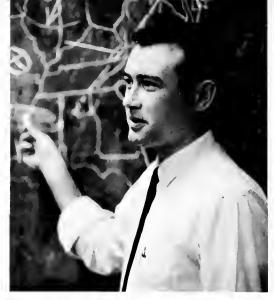

LOLA FRANCIS KISER. M.A., 1954, (Georgia), Associate Professor of Mathematics has studied with the National Science Foundation Institute and is known for her interest in students.

Natural Sciences

THOMAS JACK CARRINGTON, M.S., 1960, (Kentucky), Professor of Geology, is noted among students for his sense of humor and excellent lectures.

WILLIAM THOMAS, Ph.D., 1960, (Virginia Polytechnic lustitute), Professor of Geology, writer and professor, is currently doing research to discover a "missing link" between strata of the Appalachian Mountains and the Ouachita Mountains.

PAUL C. BAILEY, Ph.D., 1949, (Vanderbilt), Professor of Biology, has written over twenty papers in various scientific journals and also speaks on "The Cancer Problems."

DAN HOLLIMAN, Ph.D., 1962, (Alabama, Assistant Professor of Biology, professor and speaker, specializes in vertebrate zoology and speaks on "Wildlife Biology as a Profession."

JAMES A. DOUBLES, Ph.D., 1940, (North Carolina), Professor of Biology, is a member of the American Fern Society and has done research on the Taxonomy of the Myxomycetes of the Southeastern U.S.

DAN KIMBROUGH, M.S., 1959, (Alabama), Assistant Professor of Biology, is a NIH Research Fellow in Physiology and specializes in zoology.

Dr. Wilcox conducts chemistry demonstration for high school seniors on Scholarship Day.

Four o'clock Physics lab.

Dr. Hollinen wins the trophy for the best April Fool's exhibit.

Every yearbook staff uses the "student disecting frog" picture every year. We used a dogfish shark.

Social Sciences

Alexander Pope recognized the truth of human distinctiveness in observing that "the proper study of mankind is man." Likewise, if man be a creature, another proper study is his social condition and experience.

For convenience and ease of specialization, the former unity of study of man in his social context has been subdivided into the components of the social sciences. Where the physical universe intrudes upon human life, there geography records the intrusion. When man retaliates by using nature to satisfy his needs and desires, economics describes the process. Sociology is the oracring of the web of human association into an effective system, politics the ordering of power for the public good. Psychology seeks to illuminate the hebavioristic and mental activities of man in society, while education seeks to lead man out of himself into an harmonious adjustment to the conditions of life. All of these approaches lead to insight upon the human condition, but the synthesis of all is history, the summation of the human experience. Through these lenses is the light of the past focused upon the present, and all ages and men "immediate to God" made intelligible to human understanding.

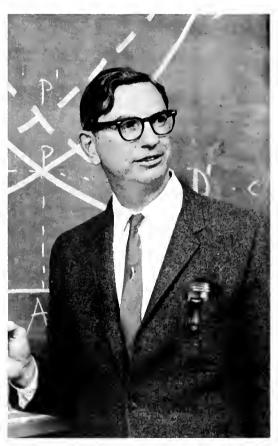

O. L. Burnette

O. LAWRENCE BURNETT, Ph.D., 1962, (Virginia), Associate Professor of History, writer and editor, has written an elementary textbook on United States history and is editorial consultant or Charles Scribner's and Sons

ROBERT deJANES, M.A., 1959, (University of Tennessee), Professor of History, encourages class discussion. His hobby is Middle American Archeology.

RICHARD W. MASSEY, Ph.D., 1959, (Vanderbilt), Associate Professor of Economics, in his leisure time enjoys bicycling, collecting unusual tea samples, and studying the economic values of cars, especially the Rolls Royce.

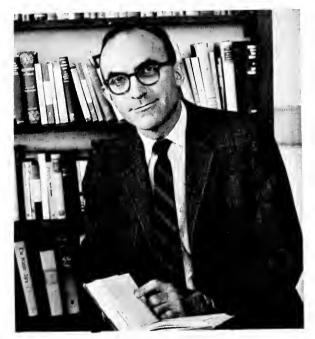

JOHN S. COCHRAN, Ph.D., 1961, (Harvard), Assistant Professor of Economics, economic historian, has a wide range of outside interests including tennis.

RALPH M. TANNER, M.A., 1957, (Birmingham-Southern), Professor of History, musician and historian, specializes in American history before 1865 and also directs a choir.

EVELYN WILEY, Ph.D., 1959. (Pennsylvania), Professor of History, can clarify the most complicated trends of hisrory, and is noted for her course in Ancient Civilization.

HENRY CLAY RANDALL, Ph.D., 1963, (North Carolina), Professor of History, English history expert, gives vivid descriptions of historical characters in his lectures and has done vast research on Benjamin Disraeli.

WINYSS SHEPHARD, M.A., 1951, (Pennsylvania), Instructor of History, in her spare time enjoys music, gardening, and square dancing.

WINTHROP R. WRIGHT, Ph.D., 1963, (Pennsylvania), Assistant Professor of History, is particularly interested in Latin American history, and wrote his dissertation on "Argentine Railways and Growth of Nationalism."

Social Sciences

WILLIE MAE GILLIS, Ph.D., 1960, (Colorado), Associate Professor of Psychology, through lectures reveals her broad view of sociology gained from education in both Colorado and New Zealand.

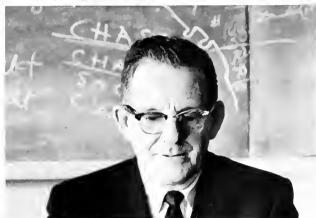

IRVING KAUFMAN, B.A., 1961, (University of Florida), Assistant Professor of Psychology, professor and sportsman, is particularly interested in experimental psychology and is active in faculty sports.

MARSHAL SPANN, M.A., 1963, (Alabama), Instructor of Education, musician as well as professor, is the minister of music at Midfield Baptist Church.

RAYBURN JONES, Ph.D., 1959, (Vanderbilt), Associate Professor of Psychology, has far-reaching interests in his field, including the Mental Health Clinic and preparation of students for graduate school.

RAY BLACK, Ph.D., 1956, (Alabama), Professor of Education, secondary education specialist, is noted for his interest in students both in and outside the classroom.

BOBBY DON WHETSTONE, Ph.D., 1963, (Alabama), Professor of Education, professor and musician, is a former band director and teaches adult education courses in speed reading.

ELIZABETH DAVIS, A.M., 1946, (Birmingham-Southern), Assistant Professor of Physical Education, has received special instruction in First Aid and Water Safety, and directs the Water Ballet each year.

BILLY P. BURCH, M.A., 1947, (Peabody), Associate Professor of Physical Education, active in campus and civic affairs, is a member of the Athletic Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

HAROLD PICKEL, M.A., 1960, (Birmingham-Southern). Professor of Physical Education, coach of the 'Southern Panthers, conveys his school spirit to all his students.

WILLIAM BATTLE, M.A., 1930, (Peabody), Professor of Physical Education, has written a book, The Importance of Physical Education in the Education Program, from which he lectures extensively.

GENE SELLERS, M.B.A., 1962, (Alabama), Assistant Professor of Business Administration, is noted for his thorough knowledge of accounting and business law.

Birmingham-Southern's library is adequate for students interested in research, and superb for those interested in sleeping.

The choir is entertained by a jazz piece at the piano, which they hide.

Organ lessons are among the musical opportunities included in the conservatory's program.

The white benches on the quad provide excellent opportunity for a few extra minutes of between-class study.

Humanities

Earlier Birmingham-Southern College catalogs identified three administrative "divisions" of academic disciplines. The Humanities, as distinguished from the Natural Sciences and the Social Sciences, included courses in ancient and modern languages and their literatures, the visual arts, the dramatic arts, music, and philosophy. Although the Division of Humanities no longer appears in the catalog, the individual departments that composed it continue to offer courses concerned with the creative works of the human mind. Their special province is the kind of humanistic study that develops artistic talent and the analytical skill necessary to enjoy, appreciate, and understand the products of man's inventive genius. Whatever the product-a language, a painting, a play, a novel, a philosophical treatise, an epic, a sonnet, a symphony-understanding it means recognizing its intrinsic as well as its extrinsic values, its formal structure as well as its external ends. The humanities attempt to train students not only to judge these works of human creativeness on principles rather than prejudices but also to become active participants in the creative process.

Howard Creed

JOHN PAUL POOLE, Ph.D., 1964, (Alabama), professor and critic, gives valuable advice to those associated with QUAD, the campus literary magazine.

HOWARD H. CREED, Ph.D., 1942, (Vanderbilt). specializes in Romantic Poetry and has written three articles on Coleridge, including "The Ancient Mariner."

CLASSES

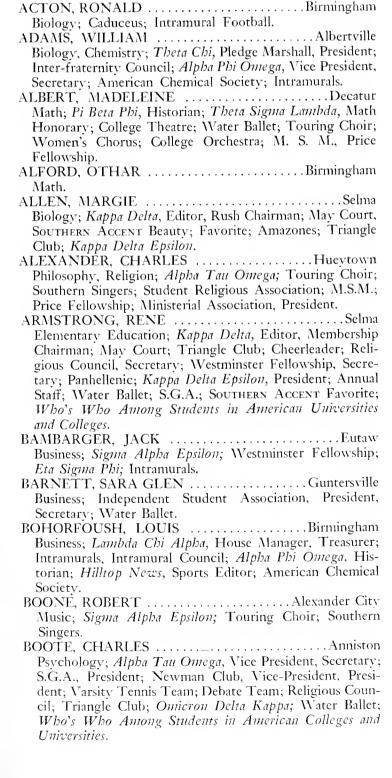

Editors. Ann-Howard Fenn and Pat Graybill

We smoke the countless cigarettes
Or stare into life's future
In our coffee cups.
We laugh the joyless laughs
Of those who sit in judgment
Or cry the bitter tears
Of the judged.
We stand in eagerness,
Awaiting life,
When life is all around us.

LEADERSHIP

Editors: Ellen Worthy and Rene Armstrong

These are the chosen,
Who bud and blossom
In the midst of cold, unfeeling details;
And go on,
To once again turn their faces
Toward the sun.

Phi Beta Kappa

The Phi Beta Kappa key marks the highest scholastic honor that a college student can attain. Since only those institutions which meet certain requirements of excellence can maintain a chapter, the Phi Beta Kappa scholar is nationally recognized for his achievement. Southern's Phi Beta Kappa scholars for 1964 were:

William D. Barnard

Beverlye Jean Brown

Edward E, Crouch

Judith Kaye Crowe

Patricia R. DuBose

John Melton Ferrell

Judith Ann Fields

Charlotte Hicks Glover

Mary Lillian Graham

John Patrick Haley

William B. Herlong

Margaret Ann Hites

Melinda Kerr

Abner Lynn Luther

Joseph William Matthews

Lynn Hope Moody

Sara Grimes Moore

Jeremy D. Rose

James F. Trucks

Jerry P. Winfield

Melinda McEachern was a representative to the Student Government Association, a member of Mortar Board, and a Favorite in the 1965 SOUTHERN

Nancy Carol Murphree, editor of the 1965 SOUTHERN ACCENT, also served as president of Mortar Board, and pledge supervisor for Pi Beta Phi.

Bill Harmon was president of Lambda Chi Alpha, a member of ODK, and Republican chairman for Mock Elections.

Who's Who

Among Students in American Colleges and Universities

Selected by a committee of students and faculty members and approved by the national organization, nineteen Birmingham-Southern students were listed in the 1964-1965 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. These nineteen were nominated for their scholarship, participation and leadership in campus activities, service to the college, and promise of future usefulness. Besides the honor of recognition, Who's Who provides its members with valuable services in placement and references for employment, scholarships or fellowships, etc.

Diane Copeland served as president of Kappa Delta, May Queen, and Sweetheart of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Barbara Wright was a member of Mortar Board, Corresponding secretary for Pi Beta Phi, and national secretary of Eta Sigma Phi.

Nancy Carr a niember of Mortar Board, was also a staff writer for The Hilltop News, Betty Farrington, former director of the Student Activities Council, served as president of Alpha Omicron Pi.

Robert Smith was president of the Interfraternity Council and Vice President of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Charles Booth, president of the Student Government Association, played varsity tennis and was a member of ODK.

Who's Who

Peggy Walton, who was the 1965 Miss Southern Accent, was also active in the Concert Choir and College Theatre.

Ian Sturrock served as president of Kappa Alpha Order and Sports Editor for The Hilltop News.

Chris Waddle was editor of The Hill-top News and a member of Publications Board, Jeannie Meadows served as president of the Student Religious Association and was a 1965 Southern Accent Beauty.

Rene Armstrong participated in the 1964 and 1965 Miss Southern Accent Pageants and was a representative to the Student Government Association.

Danny Hixon, president of Omicron Delta Kappa and of Alpha Tau Omega, also served as chairman of the Honor Council.

Among Students in American Colleges and Universities

Lynn Faucett was president of Zeta Tau Alpha, a member of Mortar Board, and Copy Editor of the Southern Accent.

Tennant McWilliams played varsity tennis and sang in the College Choir.

Kimi Stinson, president of Pi Beta Phi, served as a representative to the Student Government Association for two years.

Omicron Delta Kappa

Omicron Delta Kappa is the outstanding service and honorary organization for upper division men. In its selection for membership it recognizes and encourages achievement in scholarship, student government, social and religious affairs, publications, speech, music, drama, and the other arts. Through this representative selection, an organization is created of men in all phases of collegiate life. Each year a member of the faculty is also tapped with the purpose of bringing faculty and student body together on a basis of mutual interest.

The activities of ODK, lead this year by Danny Hixon, included helping with Parents' Day in the fall, and sponsoring an alumni banquet in the spring. Publication of a student directory remained the organization's most outstanding service to the campus.

Every convocation brings a surprise.

Mortar Board

Membership in Mortar Board, traditionally the highest honor that a senior woman may receive at Birmingham-Southern, is both a reward and a responsibility. The qualities of scholarship, leadership, and service are prerequisites for membership; they are, at the same time, the objectives of that membership.

The 1964-65 members of Southern's Scroll Chapter were faced by the usual handicaps of Mortar Board chapters—heavy extracurricular and academic responsibilities as well as special Mortar Board projects like operating the Book Exchange, serving or ushering at campus events, sponsoring "Late Date Nights" and a china display to make money for the scholarships they give. In spite of a tight schedule, however, the girls, under the leadership of Nancy Carol Murphree, tried to spend some time analyzing the role of a senior honorary and the needs of our particular campus. As a result of this evaluation, the group became interested in a need for more adequate graduate school information and preparation for our undergraduates. The beginnings of a program to help this situation were worked out and bequeathed to the 1965-66 Mortar Boarders for establishment.

Student Government Association

''It was moved to evaluate the re-evaluation committee.''

The Student Government Association, spurred by its own re-evaluation and the dissatisfaction of many students, deviated somewhat from its norm. All campus events were more than typically successful, as were new committees composed of both faculty members and students.

Perhaps the most involved duties of S. G. A. remained the allocation of the budget and freshman orientation and camp. Other exciting events of the association's year included the Catch-the-Prowler party (not an all-campus function), discussions about campus parking problems and the campus police squad.

S. G. A. provided much entertainment for the typical B. S. C. student, ranging from informative forums to movies and games. In accordance with the campus beautification program, several paintings were placed in the Student Government office.

Holding the positions of leadership this year were: Charles Booth, president; George Warren, vice-president; Jackie Adams, secretary; Jim Cobb, treasurer.

For students at Birmingham-Southern the Honor System is as much a part of college life as are the 64 steps to third-floor Munger. This system is an underlying code of ethics which directs the student body in scholastic and other activities. A council composed of seven upper division students is elected by the Student Government Association and the deans of the college to administer the code. By informing students; promoting a general atmosphere of respect for the system, and trying violators, when necessary, the Council strives to make the word bonor a working reality. Danny Hixon was chairman of this year's council.

The actions and concerns of the 1964-65 Publications Board were an expression of a general campus movement toward clearer definition of roles and more efficient methods of action.

Holding regular, and often lengthy, meetings, the members of the Board acquired a new understanding of their collective responsibilities, as well as of their individual duties. Under the leadership of Dr. Cecil Abernethy, the group began to assume a positive role, less negative and more creative than in the past. One of their primary goals was to make publications a part of the co-curriculum of the college, rather than just an extraneous element. A related goal was the definition and legalization of the relationship between the Administration, the Faculty Committee on Publications, and the student-dominated Publications Board. Although in the process of reinterpreting its own basis for action, the Board did not hesitate to act decisively when necessary.

In thus assuming the responsibilities of leadership, the 1965 Publications Board became the embodiment of a student body growing up; in essence, its history was that of Birmingham-Southern College in 1965.

The Hilltop News

The changes that were made in the Hilltop News this year were made with a firm conviction that demanded a certain respect. Extraneous material was deleted, and an attempt to improve the material included was noticeably successful. Critical editorials were a source of controversy all year, and the stir that surrounded them reminded us that the line between good judgment and poor judgment is, indeed, a thin one.

Business Manager, Jack Taggart, fights an uphill battle to keep the paper, or rather to get the paper, in the black financially.

An editorial conference is held to discuss material which will be included in Friday's paper.

Typists hurry to finish their work before the deadline.

Members of the staff make last-minute changes in copy.

Coverage of all campus events is a necessity for the Hilltop News. Here the sports editors take notes in the gym.

One of the many duties of editor, Chris Waddle, is checking the proofs at the printer's every Thursday afternoon.

And this remains the inevitable fate of every newspaper.

The 1965 Southern Accent

The journey from absence to presence is the length of a thousand ideas . . . sifted, combined, adapted, to create the reality of a page. The 1965 Southern Accent was first a void; then, an idea; and now, a book-a reality of picture, word, and design. Many people contributed in making it so, among them: Nancy Murphree, Editor; Don Emory, Business Manager; Jan Langford, Photographer; Lynn Facuett and Ann McKnight, Copy Editors; Walter Ellis and George Jenkins, Associate Editors; Ann-Howard Fenn and Pat Graybill, Class Editors; Donna Ligon, Greek Editor; George Ann Gibson, Beauty Editor; Rene Armstrong and Ellen Worthy, Leadership Editors; Mike Hoke, Jim Tripp, and Barbara Wright, Sports Editors; Billie Clearman and Linda Cowart, College Calendar Editors; Bob Gamble, Administration Editor; Kathy Savage, Faculty Editor; Ruth Sullivan and Barbara Weed, Organizations Editors; Rosemary Walker, Typist; Cynthia Wells and Jack Lloyd, Index Editors; Anne Cheney, Copy Writer; Janet Morrow and Tommy Miller, Lay-out Assistants; Anne Stimson, Director of Miss Southern Accent Pageant; Wayne Bramlett, Artist; Carol Purdy, Donna Barnwell, Nancy Graessle, and Camille Smith, Assistants to Editors.

Business Manager, Don Emory, shows one of the advertisers what his ad will look like.

Sometimes ideas for words come from pictures; sometimes pictures come from words. Here Ann and Lynn get their inspiration for copy from pictures already made.

Making pictures is a necessary headache-scheduling groups; waiting on people who don't show; taking names when, and if, the picture is finally made.

Making realities of ideas is a page-by-page, picture-by-picture process. Here the beauty section yields to last-minute changes.

A million unforeseen details descend on the working staff during the year. Associate editors, Walter Ellis and George Jenkins, compose a letter to dispense with one of the million.

Identifying pictures and writing cutlines is a major job in all sections.

In spite of all plans to the contrary, typing remains a last-minute monster to face.

Class editors burn the midnight oil until their section is finished.

By the night before the last deadline, the editor can manage only a weak smile.

Laying out pages is one of the most creative steps in putting the annual together.

After checking the copy sheet, pictures, lay-out, and duniny, one can put a page to bed.

Quad

Quad, the literary magazine for Birmingham-Southern, draws its material from those students who wish to give expression to creativity beyond their academic studies. It offers to the interested student an opportunity to have his work published in a student magazine.

Of the works submitted this year, the student editorial staff, headed by Charles Shults, chose those works which they considered best. After passing the faculty sponsor, the material was prepared for publication at the end of Winter quarter.

Alpha Lambda Delta

Alpha Lambda Delta is an honorary society for freshman women. The members, tapped in the Spring, must have maintained a 3.5 average for 2 or 3 quarters. Every year Alpha Lambda Delta sponsors 2 scholarships—a $300 scholarship to a member of the chapter attending graduate school, and a $50 scholarship to an undergraduate. A candy sale is held to raise money for the undergraduate scholarship. Dink Glosser was president of the group this year.

Phi Eta Sigma

Phi Eta Sigma, an organization recognizing academic excellence on the part of freshman men, was under the capable leadership of Bob Clem this year. This organization traditionally sponsors an award to the fraternity pledge class holding the highest grade point average, an award to the graduating member of Phi Eta Sigma with the highest average, and co-operates with Alpha Lambda Delta in sponsoring a coffee for freshman students.

Tired lips smiling just once more . . .

Counting steps with satin-shod toes,

Wondering, wondering . . .

Searching for the answering smile

That inspires confidence . . .

Walking well-worn pathways

So many have traveled before

Where thunder greets the ear

With a caress . . .

ACCENT ON SOUTHERN BEAUTIES

The girls pictured in this section represent Southern's ideal of beauty for the 1964-65 college year. Although not necessarily the most glamorous or most outstanding girls on campus, each possesses a distinguishing quality which justifies her inclusion.

Talented Peggy Walton with her natural beauty holds the title of "Miss Southern Accent." To her goes the responsibility of representing Birmingham-Southern as hostess in college and civic affairs. Jeannie Meadows is top beauty and will assume Peggy's duties when necessary. Her competence in campus leadership and her responsive personality make her suited for her position.

Diane Copeland; always gracious and lady-like; Lynn Faucett, creative and perceptive; George Ann Gibson, with her warmth and sympathy; Lois Seals, continually poised; and Janet Wuehrmann, with her radiant smile—these are the beauties which the 1965 SOUTHERN ACCENT is proud to present.

Coach and the boys begin a game for Southern

Varsity Basketball

"Hard luck" is a sufficient term to describe the 1964-1965 basketball team, which has fallen to defeat in many games by very close margins. Opening the season with a 99-80 rout of Alabama College, the Panthers seemed as though they might win fifteen of their twenty game schedule. This hope soon vanished as Southern fell to Huntingdon College, a bitter rival, 66-97. After this defeat Southern could not regain its opening game form as they dropped the next two games in succession. Once again Southern gained a victory at the expense of Alabama College to the score of 72-59.

Monday night, January 11, Sewanee found Southern with a stiff defense; and Sewanee, twice victor over 'Ole Miss, fell to the Panthers 62-58. This was truly Southern's finest hour as the Panthers fought hard to win the game.

After this fine game, Southern slumped again. This time it was a seven-game skid before Southern routed Millsaps 121-99, setting a school record for the number of points scored in one game. With this victory, Southern gained enough momentum to roll over its next two foes, 94-89 and 97-76.

David Lipscomb broke the winning streak, however, with a 94-80 victory over the visiting Panthers.

At press time two games remained for these able, but inconsistent, Panthers.

Luther fights for a rebound against the Choctaws.

Lundy receives the ball in an exciting game with Huntingdon.

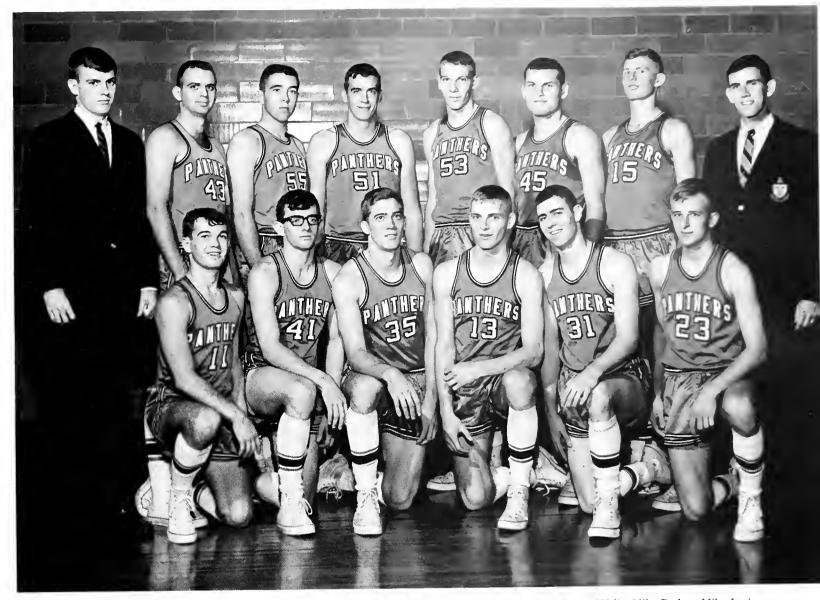

Newby brings the ball down court to increase the score for Southern.

Bill Gray pulls in a rebound for Southern.

Wells shows the form which enabled him to be the season's highest scorer.

The Cheerleaders

The task of the cheerleader is to channel school spirit at basketball games. At Birmingham-Southern this is an unusually difficult problem in that spirit must be not only directed but created. New outfits are small compensation for the exasperation in the familiar "yall yell" and the post-game laryngitis. This year's team of cheerleaders, lead by Sharry Baird, effectively handled this difficult job.

Varsity Tennis

A large, experienced tennis team will open its season at the end of Winter quarter. In addition to the returning members from last year's team, new men who have joined bring with them a great deal of skill. This year the team will play a fifteen game schedule, opening on the road against Pensacola Navy. The team will move on to Mobile to play Springhill College before returning to Southern for matches against other small colleges. All in all the year will be an exciting one both for the team and spectators.

Richard Burch opens a match with a sizzling serve.

Varsity Golf

In its second year of existence, the golf team moves into a more interesting schedule than it had last year. Many new faces have appeared, but with the experience gained in competition, the team looks forward to a winning season.

Although small in number, the team hopes that membership will increase by the time the season begins.

Men's Intramural Council

The Men's Intramural Council, composed of one representative from each fraternity and the Independents, is responsible for setting up the schedules and regulations for the men's intramural sports. The intramural program consists of such team sports as touch football, volleyball, basketball, and softball; and such individual sports as table tennis, horseshoes, swimming, badminton, tennis, and paddleball. Coach Battle directs the program.

Intramural Volleyball

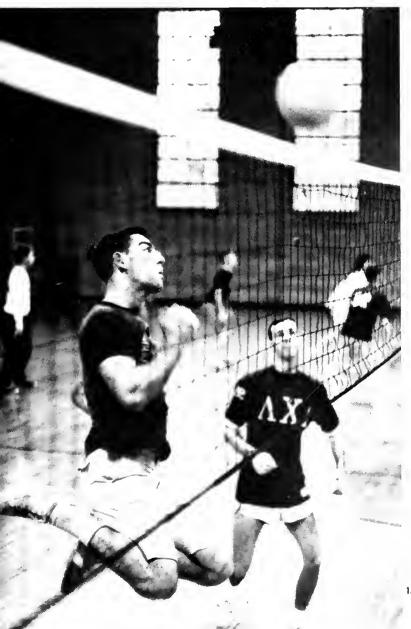

Twelve teams entered the men's volleyball intramural competition this year. These teams engaged in exciting combat in two leagues—the "Gold" and the "Black."

The top three teams from each league went into the playoff rounds. The six final teams were SAE "A", ATO "A", SAE "B", SAE "C", Faculty, and KA "A."

The championship match between SAE "A" and ATO "A" was a sports thriller ending in a score of 19-17 in favor of the SAE's.

Intramural Football

Intramural football saw some changes at B. S. C. this year. With the construction of new tennis courts and continuous bad weather, the teams were forced to play at McClendon Park part of the season, and many of the practice sessions took place on Owen Quadrangle with sidewalks as goal lines.

The Hilltop News predicted that SAE would capture first place, but the well-balanced Indie team pushed them to second with a 6-0 win, proving once more that even The Hilltop News can be wrong. Final standings were: First, Independents; Second, SAF; Third, Lambda Chi and KA; Fourth, ATO; Fifth, PiKA; and Sixth, Theta Chi.

Intramural Basketball

The Intramural Basketball season at Southern was, as usual, one of the most exciting of the year. This year the season went as predicted with the SAF "A" team leading the "Gold" league and the Indies leading the "Black" league. At press time, the teams were getting ready for the double elimination tournament. A group of all-stars were selected for the first time to participate in exhibition games played on Alumni and Scholarship Days.

Senior Manager Holly Farmer graduated after fall quarter, leaving responsibility of the Council with Judy Johnson, Junior Manager.

Women's Intramural Council

One of the most active organizations on the Hilltop is the Women's Intramural Council. Nine permanent members or managers, and representatives from each participating group meet once a week to co-ordinate the varied program of women's sports. Governing the major intramural sports—volleyball, basketball, softball, and swimming, the council also organizes individual tournaments in ping pong, tennis and badminton.

The highlight of the year is the Intramural Banquet held each spring. At this time trophies are distributed to the winning teams, medals are awarded to the 1st and 2nd place winners of the individual competitions, and the top ten sports women of the year are honored. Climaxing the evening is the presentation of the "Miss Victory" trophy to the top sports team of the year. The winner in 1964 was Alpha Chi Omega.

Women's Intramural Volleyball

Short lived and hard fought . . .

As predicted, it was the Alpha Chi Omega team which found the winning combination of players and stacked up the most points to capture the trophy for the second year straight.

Almost without exception this year, every women's basketball team felt the loss of a valuable player. But to some teams, it apparently did not matter. Games were marked by the usual good sportsmanship and fine team playing in most cases; there were also the usual scrabbles and high-tension periods.

At press time, all forecasts predicted victory for the Alpha Chi Omega team for the fourth consecutive season.

American Chemical Society Eta Sigma Phi

The American Chemical Society is an organization which encourages interest in chemistry, especially as a professional career. It sponsors speakers from various parts of the South and holds a joint picnic in the spring with Theta Chi Delta. President this year was Jerald LeBlanc.

Theta Chi Delta is an honorary organization for those students holding a "B" average in four quarters of chemistry. In recognition of superior work in chemistry, an annual award is given to the graduating senior with the highest average in this field. Mark Habercom was president.

Eta Sigma Phi, sponsored by Dr. Butts and Miss Crawford, holds as its purpose the recognition of outstanding scholarship in the study of Latin and Greek, and the promotion of interest in the classics. The organization, composed of about thirty members, awards medals to outstanding high school Latin students and sponsors monthly meetings with guest speakers. The qualification for membership is a 3.0 average in advanced study in Latin or Greek. President this year was Jimmy Pace.

The Art Students' League

The Art Students' League is a society for those interested in the study of the arts. Its purpose is to acquaint the members with a well rounded understanding of art and to promote the better use of art on the campus. Among its activities are bi-monthly meetings and art displays throughout the city as well as on the campus.

The Pre-Law Society

Membership in the Birmingham-Southern Pre-Law Society is open to all students who are interested in law as a profession. The purpose of the organization, which was led this year by Jimmy Calton, is to promote and encourage pre-legal study at Birmingham-Southern. It also strives to increase the students' understanding of law and of the legal profession.

The Choirs

Pulses of time, measures of movement, mazes of tone relations . . . parting, meeting, approaching, passing blending in the mind—the exciting basics of music never change. However, externals such as techniques and circumstances may change and for Birmingham-Southern's Concert Choir, 1964-65 was a year marked by such change, as Hugh Thomas hecame the first new director of the choir in twenty-six years. The members of the choir nonetheless proved themselves a flexible group, adapting readily and gaining confidence as the year progressed.

The climax of their year was spring tour; and the climax of spring tour was the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Music included two movements of the Brahms Requiem, a group of "characteristically southern" pieces, and three church anthems by living Americans. Perhaps the highlight of the program was Rosenmüller's beautiful, but seldom performed, setting of Psalm One Hundred and Ten.

Earlier in the year the 'Southern Singers (alias the Men's Chorus) made a four-day tour into north Alabama and Tennessee, their program ranging from pre-Bach music to Allen Gibbs' arrangement of "The Promised Land." Early in February Sam Batt Owens again packed the fellows into buses, this time for New Orleans.

A number of musical programs during the year involved all three of 'Southern choirs. With only five weeks of preparation they not only survived, but enjoyed, the second annual Pops Concert. Later they had the privilege of working under Amerigo Marino, the new conductor of Birmingham's Symphony Orchestra, in preparing for the Hymn Festival.

Then came the famous Christmas Carol Service. Especially memorable were the men's rendition of "Ave Maria" and their "Carol of the Bells;" the women's "Jesu Bambino" with Sylvia Sanders at the harp; and the Concert Choir's "Cherry Tree Carol" and "Glory to God" by Vincent.

In April the groups were featured in a Festival of Arts program which, along with numerous other campus, church, and civic appearances, rounded out a busy, but rewarding, schedule and marked a successful transition year for Birmingham-Southern choral groups.

Religious Council

The Religious Council is a student organization composed of the president and a representative from each religious group. Under the leadership of Jeannie Meadows it co-ordinated the religious activities on campus for the year. Main activities included the promotion of Religious Emphasis Week and the sponsorship of outstanding lectures.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club is composed of approximately thirty Episcopal students. Its goal is to enrich student life spiritually and socially and to foster fellowship among Episcopal students. Among the group's activities are weekly meetings, Holy Communion services at least twice a month, guest speakers, and various service projects. This year's president was Harriet Gaither.

Westminster Fellowship

Westminster Fellowship is the religious organization for Presbyterian students. The group, composed of about twenty-five members, met weekly in the chapel. The group's activities included a charity program for underprivileged children during the Christmas season. Richard Leach was president.

Newman Club

The Newman Club, an organization for the Catholic students on campus, was led this year by Jerald T. La-Blanc. It's meetings featured prominent student and civic speakers. Philanthropic projects included a carol program and a Christmas party for a nursing home in the Birmingham area. The purpose of the club is to stimulate the spiritual and intellectual life of its members and to provide aid in understanding and discussing the faith.

Fourth Row: Leon Ellis, Bill Carlisle, Massy Gentry, John Wilson, Rigney Cofield, Preston Barmett.

Methodist Student Movement

M.S.M., headed this year by Dale Lovett, worked under a new organizational plan. The group was divided into small covenant communities which met for worship, study, and discussion. Each fourth Tuesday a combined supper was held for all Methodist students. As its goal for this year, M.S.M. attempted to evaluate the effect of the world on the church and the church's responsibility in the world as a mission.

The Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union is the religious organization for Baptist students on campus. Meeting once a week, its purpose is to provide for Christian fellowship, encourage participation in a local church, and to witness to non-Christians. Its activities include participation in a state convention in the fall, and a retreat in the fall and spring. The Baptist Student Union was headed this year by Ronald Duncan.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION—First Row: Mr. Jones, Advisor, Ron Duncan, Suellen Reid, George Ann Gibson, Sigrid Fichner, Danny Hixon. The Ministerial Association

The Ministerial Association, led this year by Charles Alexander, is open to both men and women considering full time Christian service as a vocation. It provides the opportunity for those of similar interests to meet in a fellowship of worship, study, and service. Its activities include gospel teams and special projects.

Egon W. Gerdes was the featured speaker at Religious Emphasis Week in October.

Amazons

Amazons, an honorary organization for women Greeks, is composed of three outstanding members of each sorority on campus. This group sponsors an annual tea for freshman Greeks as well as an apple sale culminating in the favorite professor award.

Gaye Duncan was president of Amazons this year and Susan Greene served as secretary-treasurer.

Circle K

Circle K has as its goal service to the school and community. A nationwide college service organization, the Birmingham-Southern group is sponsored by the Downtown Birmingham Kiwanis Club. Joe Basenberg was the local president this year.

Birmingham-Southern held two district offices: Ray Cooper, Lieutenant Governor; and Joe Basenburg, Treasurer. District convention was held on this campus during the spring quarter.

First Row: Bob Clem, Joe Basenberg, Buddy Briscoe, Robin Orme. Second Row: William Nelson, Jim Bob Williamson, Ray Cooper, Rick Sexton. Alpha Phi Omega

Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity composed of former scouts. The fraternity's purpose is to assemble college men in the fellowship of the scout oath and law, to develop friendship, and to serve the campus, community and nation. In sponsoring the Red Cross Bloodmobile, helping with orientation and registration, and distributing convocation cards, Alpha Phi Omega, under the leadership of Tommy Miller, gave valuable service to the campus.

Price Fellowship

Price Fellowship is a service organization whose goal is to promote campus and community worship through interdenominational fellowship. Under the leadership of Carol Gillespie, the group sponsored "Morning Watch" each Thursday morning, and as a special civic philanthropic project, a monthly worship program and an occasional party at the State Training School for Girls. To provide funds for their activities, they sponsored a campus-wide pancake supper.

PRICE FELLOWSHIP First Row: Jessica Jones, Maizie Griffith, Mary Ann Paul, Cathy Mims, Alyce Walker, Bill Altham, Carol Gillespie, Chella Courington, Martha Jane Paul, Jane Gwin, Kay Knowlton. The Women's House Council

The Women's House Council is a representative regulatory body composed of members from Women's West, Andrews, and Hanson. The council, sponsored by Mrs. Cothran, tries to supplement its supervisory duties. During the spring examinations, a campus-wide study break party was held in Hanson's lobby; and an elections return party was sponsored during the presidential campaign. Members of the Women's House Council were also available to show visitors around the dorms on Parent's Day and Scholarship Day.

The Men's House Council

The Men's House Council, sponsored by Dean Greaves, is composed of eleven members selected on the basis of good character and superior grades. The council's purpose is to improve dormitory life by providing the men with a means of recourse in matters concerning dorm life. However, it also strives to plan social and educational activitites as well as to regulate the student government for the men's resident halls. The group was lead this year by Ian Sturrock.

Panhellenic Council

Panhellenic, derived from the Greek "all Greek," serves as the coordinating body to create a spirit of cooperation among all sororities working together to achieve the high ideals which every individual sorority stresses. Matters that concern all campus sororities, mainly rushing, are determined by the College Panhellenic.

The group, led this year by Susan Bohorfoush, assisted the administration in special events such as High School Day and Scholarship Day. Greek Week, which replaced Catspaw this year, was a joint project of the Panhellenic Council and the Interfraternity Council.

Panhellenic committee talks over plans for Greek Week.

Inter-fraternity bull session.

The main objective of the Inter-Fraternity Council is to promote better relationships among the six fraternities on campus. Working with the cooperation of its member fraternities, the council seeks the maintenance of a strong fraternal system. This year the I.F.C. instigated a quota system, the purpose being to establish a more equal balance in size among the fraternities.

Alabama Alpha returned to Southern's campus with the coveted Philadelphia Bowl, one of the highest honors of Pi Beta Phi national. A successful fall rush yielded fourteen pledges, including one who became secretary of the Freshman class and one who took the lead in the fall play.

The chapter had members on the Honor Council, in S.G.A., and in the Touring Choir. The editor of the Southern Accent; two fraternity sweethearts; the national secretary of Eta Sigma Phi; the Senior manager of intramurals; five members of Mortar Board, including the president; a cheerleader; the director of the Miss Southern Accent Pageant, as well as two Favorites in that contest—all these were arrow girls. Their campus leadership was recognized when five members were elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Socially, the spotlight focussed on a dinner dance in honor of the pledge class. a cook-out at Lane Park, a lake party, and, of course, the ever-secretive "cookie shines."

OFFICERS. First Row: Jeannie Meadows, Second Vice-President; Janet Jennings, First Vice-President. Second Row: Suzanne Kennedy, Secretary; Lynn Faucett, President; Janice Kay Lyda, Treasurer.

Phi Chapter of Kappa Alpha contributed to many phases of campus life at Birmingham-Southern. The KA's were represented in such organizations and activities as Phi Eta Sigma, the Hilltop News staff, Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, the Men's Residence Council and the Student Religious Association.

Important offices in campus organizations were held by KA's this year. Some of these were Vice President of Omicron Delta Kappa, Captain of the Varsity Basketball team, President of the Men's Residence Council, Vice President of Westminster Fellowship and Men's Lower Division Representative to Student Government Association.

Teamwise and individually KA's were outstanding in varsity and intramural sports, claiming five members of the Varsity basketball team.

The annual Rose Ball and the Convivium celebrating Robert E. Lee's birthday on January 19 took top places on the social calendar.

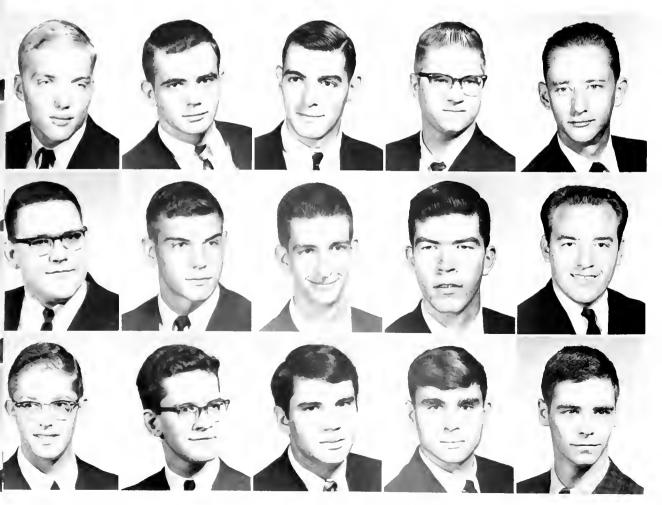

OFFICERS. Don Lusk, President; Bob Bohofoush, Vice-President; Hugh Griffin, Secretary; Louis Bohorfoush, Treasurer.

Third Row: William Rossman, Patrick Sheldon, Jim Sturgis, Daniel Summers, James Summers, George Warren, Francis Weinheimer, William Wilcox.

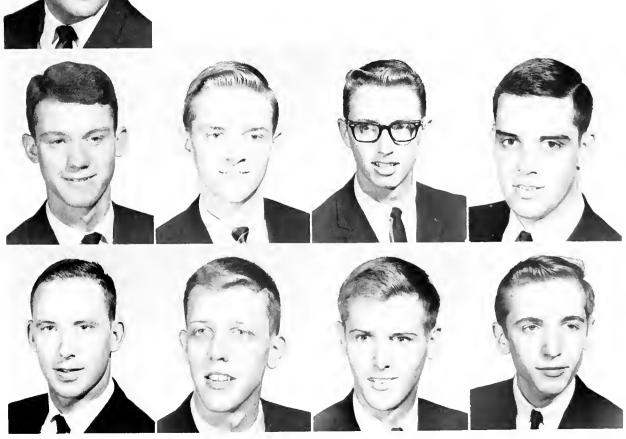

Beta Xi chapter of Theta Chi celebrated a successful fall rush season with a party for the new pledges. A new pledge training program was begun this year, and one of the pledges became Freshman Representative to the Student Government Association.

The active brothers of Theta Chi were seen in such important positions as vice president and men's upper division representative to the Student Government Association, vice president and secretary of the I.F.C., president and treasurer of the Pre Law Society, and vice president of Circle K. Theta Chis were also active in College Theatre, College choir, American Chemical Society, and intramural sports.

The pledge party and the beatnik party rang in the social phase of the year, but it was the Red and White Formal in February that was the climax of the social season.

Choir tour affords opportunity for many diverse talents to be displayed.

"He came from Lebanon with his banjo on his knee."

Choir Tour, 1964

For most students Spring holidays meant sleep, home-cooking, and extra time to do term papers; not so for the forty members of the touring choir, however, who spent their week singing in Tennessee and north Alabama. It was the twenty-fifth tour for retiring director Raymond Anderson and somewhat fewer for organist Sam Batt Owens.

Among the highlights of the church music program were William Byrd's motet, "Haec Dies;" Brahms' "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place;" and Stravinsky's "Pater Noster." High school audiences enjoyed an informal program which included individual and ensemble numbers. Thompson's setting of the Frost poem, "Chose Something Like a Star," was a favorite with the choir, and "Cindy" never failed to please the audiences. There were off-the-program features, too-a never-ceasing bridge game in the back of the bus, Joe Bullington's gospel sings in the front, and a number of romances that lasted long after Spring holidays and choir tour were past.

May Day, 1964

Universally, May exemplifies Spring freshly sprung—a time for the figurative casting off of Winter's shackles. It is a month when a jaunty madras half-scarf reminds us of the purpose of Winter, which is the appreciation of Spring. So it is on the 'Southern campus as Weejuns and wool socks are exchanged for Weejuns and no socks, and life emerges in pastels through our panarama-vision sunglasses.

As in all communities, May must be celebrated with a Spring rite, but 'Southern's annual May Day Festival is held not so much to welcome Spring, as ourselves, blinkingly emerged from our Winter carrels. Perhaps it is this intangible sense of release that makes the day an annual success.

May Day, Cont.

Top left: Proceeds from the May Day booths were sent, for the first time, to the World University Service, an organization which supports higher education around the world. One of the most popular attractions, as always was APhiO's creme-filled tension-reliever.

Top center: President Phillips promoted the campus image by dressing in the latest campus fashion at the Zeta booth.

Top right: Each year a May Queen and Court are chosen by popular vote of the students. Dianne Copeland, who was crowned 1964 Queen, was congratulated by Mrs. Cothran, Dean of Women.

Lower right: There were more spectators than twisters at the street dance that climaxed the celebration. As dawn broke across the sky over the library, the last of the party-goers jovially sauntered off for an early breakfast, and co-chairmen Warren and Meadows headed for a comfortable straight jacket.

The Authors. Hugh Thomas is the director of the Birmingham-Southern Conservatory of Music. Dr. Arnold Powell is a professor of English and the director of the Birmingham-Southern College Theatre. The two collaborated previously on Caught Dead, a satirical musical comedy based on Euripides' Alcestis. Peer? adapted from Ibsen's Peer Gynt, was first presented in Munger Auditorium on May 8, 1964.

Designer, Virginia Rembert, goes over sketches with her assistant, Howard Cruise, and technical director, Molly Friedel.

The quad becomes the scene of another event in the history of Birmingham-Southern College.

Inauguration of Howard M. Phillips

The inauguration of a college president, possibly the only one many of us will ever have the opportunity to observe, occurred on Southern's campus May 14, 1964. The setting was our own familiar quad dominated by the bleak, windy weather of Birmingham. Spectators shivered inside buildings most of the day, coming out for the pomp and remaining behind closed doors for most of the circumstance.

The things that most people remembered included the processional, Dr. Phillips' hat and the planes going over the campus. Some, however, listened to the speakers—Harllee Branch, Jr., President of the Southern Company, and Dr. Howard M. Phillips—and learned what a small liberal arts college faces in the world of today. And they learned, too, what the educated really do dream of.

Dr. Phillips outlines his goals for Birmingham-Southern.

C AT POLATO CHAPS

Rush starts early.

Po' Boy Supper

Po' Boy, the annual philanthropic event celebrated by Zeta everywhere, came to Southern on the coldest day in May. But the Zeta's were brave and went bar-foot anyway, students and faculty ate the sandwiches again, and the chorus line managed to evoke laughter.

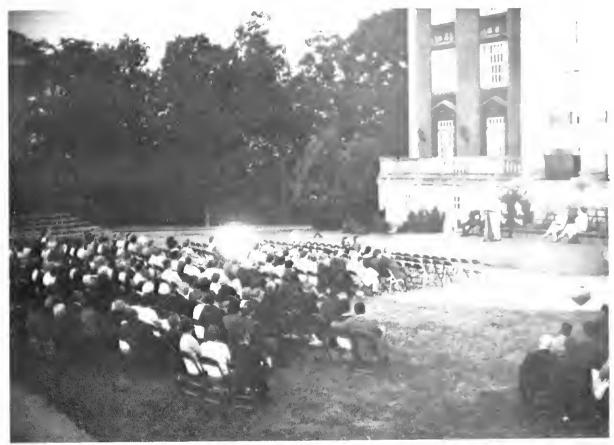

For entertainment the Greek groups provided talent, and Fred "Lorinbrau" Boyd, as MC Jackie Adams insisted on calling him, kept all hands clapping until darkness and cold wind pushed everyone inside to study. Zetas propped still bare feet on sorority room furniture, ate left over sandwiches, and speculated on next year.

"Food and entertainment with the Zeta's."

"Bar Foot" chorus.

Dr. Phillips makes progress report.

Alumni Day

In connection with the administrative policy of closer cooperation between college, student body, and related community. Alumni Day was held in the spring. To honor the alumni, temporary booths for graduates of each year were set up on the quad and a bar-b-que buffet was served. Dr. Phillip's address, following the meal, was geared to acquaint the alumni with his plans for the college and to solicit their support.

Graduation, 1964

Graduation marks the last great milestone in the student career, and ends the security of the academic niche. The graduate has acquired all that others can do to prepare him to meet the demands of adulthood. How he faces his changing responsibilities is now entirely in his own hands. Only he, and others like him, can decide whether they will be "subjects of change or masters of it."

... into the future.

Dr. Winfred Godwin, director of the Southern Regional Education Board, delivered the commencement address on May 30, 1964. Believing this to be one of the most pertinent speeches delivered on the campus during the academic year, the Southern Accent is proud to present portions of it:

... the college that does not deal with change, that does not respond to new needs and opportunities, no matter how difficult, does not find the way to renew itself. It stagnates and becomes of little consequence. So it is with individuals. It is about you and change that I want to speak briefly.

In the 16 years since I sat where you now sit, we have emerged from World War II, fought the Korean War, and grown accustomed to the Cold War. We have built enough bombs to erase life from the planet. We have seen Europe rebuild from ashes and watched the whole of Asia and Africa stirring from the slumber of the ages. We have shrunk the globe with jets and communication satellites, and we have set forth on the sea of space, both to protect ourselves and to answer the riddles of our beginnings.

... Long before another 16 years pass, we will see and must deal with the great impact of other economic, political and social changes now under way ... which will test our patience, our credibility, our inventiveness and our compassion. And it may be that some of you will want to stop the world and get off, which is really a very easy thing to do. Others of you may want your thinking packaged for you, and you will find many merchants of ideas and labels, whose prices are quite low. Some of you will be tempted by the shrill voices of small minds who would have you believe that the problems of change are really battles between conservatives and communists, between liberals and patriots, between human rights and states' rights.

But the educated person knows that change is the basic condition of any healthy society. He knows, as Robert Oppenheimer has suggested, that "the world alters as we walk in it" . . . Furthermore, the educated person has a special responsibility to create and help shape change, to be a participant in the important affairs of his time rather than a mere spectator. For he has had, at a college such as this, a better than average chance to understand some of the forces that are bringing change. Even more important, he has had the chance to develop the power to analyze problems and situations.

Most important, the educated man can deal with change—helping to shape and mold it in the service of the individual and society—because he has a vision of what should be changed and what should be preserved, and why . . . I hope that this college has helped you understand that there are values worth reaching for and holding to, values that provide balance and direction in a changing world.

... In many tomorrows of relentless change each of you will decide many times what you bring to the ideals that have made this nation great. And in so doing, you will help decide when we will be subjects of change or masters of it.

The longest walk of the year marks the beginning and the end.

A bleak dorm room will soon be home.

Fall Beginnings

When a freshman comes to college, he makes not only an emotional leap, but also a physical leap. There is nothing to compare with moving in a dormitory to make the first-year man feel away from home. The first night back at school is traditionally "let's get together" time, when freshmen carefully unpack, and upperclassmen just as carefully put it off in favor of other diversions.

Orientation and rush occupy every minute of the first week for both freshmen and upperclassmen. There is generally an upswing of spirits, possibly due to little sleep and no classes. The freshmen speed from orientation programs and testing to rush parties (breaking in new loafers all the while) and then back to dormitories to talk it all over. Schedules for the upperclassmen do not vary very much—though they rush to and from other meetings to rush parties, they, too, talk it over.

Feminine devils lure rushes into KD hades.

Freshman camps at Sumatanga this year provided all of Southern's students with a weekend of recreation. While the freshmen packed for camp, women's Greek groups celebrated the last skit parties of the hectic week in a burst of Panhellenic spirit, congregating in the Zeta room and singing at the top of their lungs.

For the freshmen Sumatanga meant gigantic folk sings, good food (hot when it should be hot and cold when it should be cold), and a chance to get to know fellow classmates. The presence of faculty members and upperclassmen reminded freshmen that this, too, was orientation, but even this fact did not quench the spirits of these remarkable freshmen who returned to school more enthusiastic than ever. Dyed-in-the-wool upperclassmen returned with almost equal enthusiasm and something to talk about at rush parties.

Rush was exhaustingly lengthy this year, lasting for two full weeks with no let-up in tension. After bids finally went out, the normal reactions prevailed—intense happiness and equally intense disappointment plus an almost overpowering relief that rush would not happen again for a year.

Remnants of student frustrations were absolved at the all-campus Back-to-School Party. The ballroom was decorated with crepe paper streamers which were immediately torn down, and Ace Cannon played loudly until midnight.

Miss Southern Accent Pageant

Beginning with the Beauty Walk and student voting, the week devoted to the selection of Miss Southern Accent was both exciting and nerve-racking. Semi-finalists met a panel of judges—Mrs. J. B. Hill, Mr. Johnny Johnson, Mrs. D. Trotter Jones, and Mr. Lindy Martin—at an afternoon tea, followed by two days of interviews. The fifteen girls chosen as finalists were honored at a banquet at the King's Inn in Homewood. Afterward, the judges conferred to make tentative decisions, while the girls went home to speculate and prepare for the big night.

The pageant itself, one of the more refined of the traditional campus events, was held on October 22, 1964, a totally untraditional Thursday night. Attendance was lower than in previous years, probably due to the fact that not all of Southern's faculty is symapthetic to campus functions held in the middle of the week. Mrs. Cothran was generous, however, and coeds enjoyed late permission without benefit of Mortar Board.

Tension had mounted to a frenzied peak by Thursday night, after a harried week of judging, cutting, and judging again. At the pageant itself, a lack of "walk-on" music seemed to heighten the tension, and even the usually responsive audience seemed to tighten up a bit.

After intermission, however, when Peggy Walton was crowned Miss Southern Accent, everyone relaxed to laugh at the antics of the Four Freshmen and applaud their music without inhibition.

Roses for Peggy.

Parents' Day

Motivating the establishment of Parents' Day as an annual event was the realization of a three-way responsibility between parent, student, and school. Too often an ignored factor in the partnership, parents of Birmingham-Southern students were given an opportunity to observe the physical and eduactional aspects of the college.

In establishing this Parents' Day as one of a series of "days" including Scholarship Day and the Spring Visit, administrative officials had a subordinate purpose as well as the obvious one; it was hoped that the close cooperation between the student body, faculty, and administration in planning and carrying out these special events would help formulate a closer working relationship between them.

The Day begins with registration and snack-bar coffee.

Mock Elections

The wide divergence in policy between presidential candidates Goldwater and Johnson made the 1964 campaign of intense interest to Southern's campus. For the first time a mock election was instigated to accurately poll student opinion, and the campus showed a surprising amount of enthusiasm. Snavely bipartsianly hosted a mock convention for both parties; Ramsey, an avowed Goldwaterite, obliquely glared at Phillips, who wore a single Johnson sign, for all the world like a political button, on its stone lapel; even old mother Munger painfully kicked her heels to the tune of a political speech by Carl Elliot.

As the election reached its conclusion, snack bar politicians and Hanson lobbyists discussed their convictions in varying degrees of intelligibility; and the typical college image, which might be symbolized by the humble question mark, was usurped by a burgandy exclamation point.

The mock election resulted in a sizeable victory for Goldwater, but undaunted Democrats merely waited for the national election and the realization by the befuddled GOP that they had tippled too much AuH-O.

Students go for Goldwater 300 to 183.

November 3rd, however, saw the nation go for Lyndon Johnson.

Greek pledges compete for the scarecrow

Halloween is a celebration which never loses its fascination—a flashy symbol of an equally flashy season. Halloween is a time that makes a chemical engineering student insist upon the sincerity of his pumpkin patch, or it is a brightly plaided, red-headed Barbara in the autumn leaves. Inspired by the season's crisp intangibility, even the most serious student finds himself overtly watching the sky for the advent of the "Great Pumpkin."

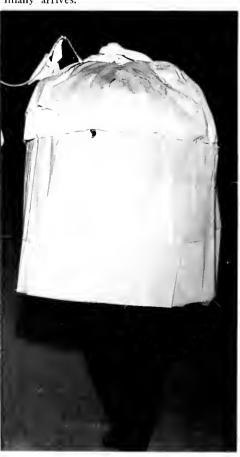

Of all celebrations, Halloween must surely be equated with perpetual youth, perhaps because its simplicity has not been destroyed by commercialism.

"Trick or Treat?"

Thanks to the S.G.A., the "Great Pumpkin" finally arrives.

And everyone gathers 'round to hear.

All-Campus Greek Pledge Party

In keeping with the spirit of the freshman class and a general mood of intra-Greek cooperation, the pledge class of Pi Beta Phi sponsored an All-Campus Greek Pledge Party. In spite of competition from ice cream floats, potato chips, and conversation, the highlight of the party was entertainment by the various pledge classes, ranging from jokes to original songs. Afterward, favorable comments from pledges and pledge trainers encouraged the Pi Phi's to make the party an annual event.

Cheerleader Elections

Cheerleader elections are held annually in the fall. Tryouts are announced several weeks beforehand and are open to all interested coeds. A few days before the elections, the number participating is limited by a panel of judges; the seven cheerleaders and two alternates are then elected by popular vote. These girls have the important job of creating school spirit during the basketball season.

Every American's privilege.

Pops Concert

November 6-7. Competing with college theatre props and a sudden burst of rain, the three college choirs presented their second annual pops concert. Under the direction of Hugh Thomas, Sam Batt Owens, and Daphne Grimsley, the choirs presented an excellent program. Importantly, the quality of the program was equaled by its variety. One could enjoy the frivolity of the "Cider Song," the cheerful cynicism of the "Twelve Days of Marxmas," or the boldness of "Lullaby of Birdland." One could also feel the poignance of a Robert Frost poem set to music, the awe of the solo "Ave Maria," or the simple majesty of Copeland's "The Promise of Living."

Men's chorus lets out with "Blow the Man Down."

Paul Avila Mayer

Pirandello makes us think, but at the same time he makes us feel. He is simply not interested in thoughtless feelings or feelingless thought. Sometimes the thoughtful detachment and the emotional involvement alternate in the progression of the scenes, or in the progression of the moments within a scene, but more often they run together, blend, and constitute one and the same dramatic moment, for with Pirandello, as with Donne, thinking is a passion.

Christmas

Despite exam week, Christmas on the campus remains a special season. Then, for a brief moment the school unites in the sensation of glimpsing colored lights through windows on fraternity row or hearing the evening carol from Munger's recorded chimes. Oddly, shopping amid the spangle and glitter of a commercialized gaiety does not obliterate the fact that Christmas is essentially an affair of the heart. To the hyperorganized, sometimes insensitive atmosphere of the college campus it brings a needed moment of warmth.

S.G.A. makes a sound investment in the Christmas spirit.

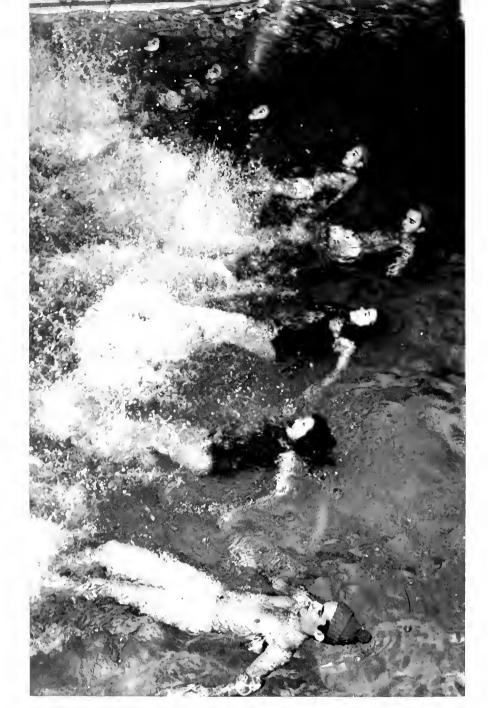

Water Ballet

"Miss Davis pushed us into it!"

The annual Water Ballet was held immediately before the Christmas holidays, and in conjunction with the season the theme was "Christmas Tide's In." A cast of swimmers, technical directors, and vocal participants performed under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Davis. The Ballet was held in the gym December 7-8.

The Water Ballet made a big splash!

I went with Prancer for years . . . we were very close!"

Casino Party

Eager crowd awaits the floor show.

The second annual Alpha Chi-sponsored Casino Party was held in the Snavely ballroom. Despite the sanctioned gambling, the carbonated "drinks," the bunny girls with purple net tails, and the modestly leotarded torch singer, the affair was a success. The crowd around the red checked tables and on the dance floor was proof to this.

That which was eagerly awaited.

Players enjoy sanctioned gambling one night a year.

As for us, give us Pub Jr, or give us death!"

Pub Benefit

To students used to contrived atmosphere, the snack bar represents a panorama of steel and synthetic orderliness. When the nostalgic suggestion of re-opening the old hangout in the North dorm was rejected, S.G.A. proposed that the snack bar be redecorated in a less cooly depersonalized way. In order to show the administration that the students were backing the redecoration, a talent show and dance were planned with the idea of using the funds to partially cover remodeling expenses. The usually large proportion of the student body who fails to support S.G.A. functions missed one of the most amusing nights on Munger's stage. Bob Cain, surprisingly, served only as an introduction and in no way detracted from the campus entertainment which followed.

The original "Arkadelphia Street Blues."

The show went smoothly and according to plan until the thine tell off the piano.

Carlos Montoya

To Birmingham-Southern's musically-oriented student body, Carlos Montoya's guitar concert was one of the most successful "co-curricular" affairs of the year. The bald little Spanish gypsy performing on Munger's bare stage demonstrated such skill that amateur "pickers" in the audience sat in stunned admiration. Yet his flamenco music was more than a mere exercise in finger calisthenics. His brilliant improvisations almost underlined his quote from the program . . . "The heart is all."

In proper concert attitude the audience listened to the tuxedoed performance, but a student body used to informality could not resist a spontaneous standing ovation. His casual encore delighted the audience, and his humorous "me no specka de English" seemed much more congruous to his personality than his cummerbund.

Warming up backstage . . . Flamenco style.

With deft fingers, Carlos demonstrates the technique that has made him famous.

Montoya signs autographs for admirers at the reception which followed the performance.

For your information and reference the ACCENT presents an index to the people who were Birmingham-Southern in 1965. Some were serious scholars; some, no scholars at all. Some were recognized for their talents; others performed unnoticed. Some were dedicated to a goal; others never knew what they wanted. But each person was an individual—an individual who shaped and was shaped by this alma mater, Birmingham-Southern.

The business staff depends heavily on the advertisement section of this annual, for without this source of revenue it would be impossible to publish this year book. We ask that each student do two things in regard to the advertisements—after looking at the pictures go back to read the copy, and please patronize our advertisers at every opportunity.

ACIPCO
ADDS STEEL PIPE
PRODUCING FACILITY

You're looking inside the new American Steel Pipe Division plant recently completed at ACIPCO and now in production. This new facility means additional employment, additional production, and additional growth for ACIPCO and for Birmingham. As has been said before, the success of one contributes to the other. We're proud of our mutual progress. And as the nation knows the name of AMERICAN as a leading source of quality cast iron pipe and steel tubing, you can be sure our steel pipe will take its important position. The men and women of ACIPCO are proud of the part our company and our people have played in contributing to the civic and cultural growth of the community. Yes . . . it is nice to live in Birmingham.

A Stepping Stone

The 1965 edition of The Southern Accent makes no pretense of being a perfect book, nor does it claim to be completely new and revolutionary in its approach. It does, however, attempt to make some positive and specific contributions to the legacy of Southern Accents, believing that future staffs will be influenced by this book, just as we were both helped and hindered by the yearbook tradition which we inherited. Therefore, to us, this 1965 Southern Ac-CENT will be a success only if it serves as a stepping stone to better yearhooks. To that end we cast her away . . . acknowledging the help of many people in bringing her to this point of adulthood. We give a special note of thanks . . .

-To Floy Blane, representative from Alabama Engraving Company, for her enthusiasm and hard work.

—To Mr. Roy Hickman of Alabama Engraving for his help and his interest in our book.

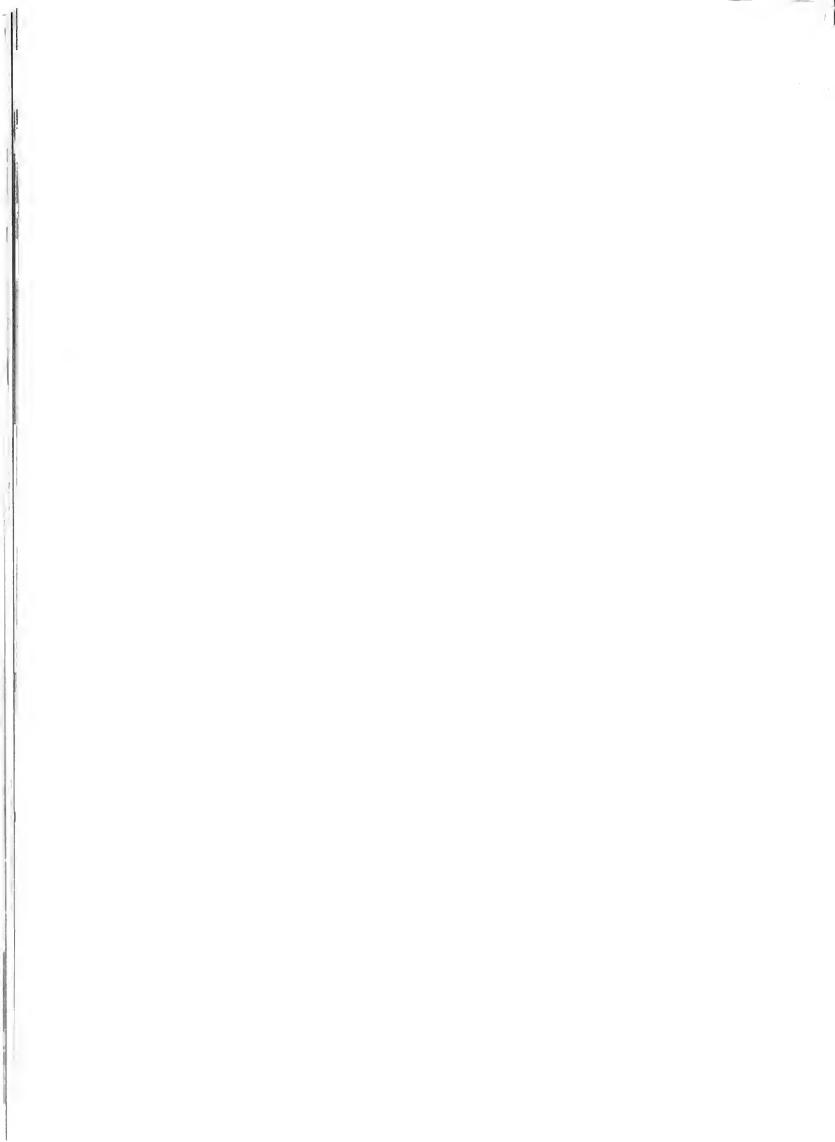

-To W. W. Norton and Company, Inc. for the quotation from Edith Hamilton's book, The Greek Way.

-To the Alan Cheney's of Oneonta who so graciously lent us their home and its surroundings for the setting of our beauty pictures.

- —To photographer Jan Langford for his good humor and his advice, not to mention his excellent pictures.
- -To Drs. Gordon, Burnette, and Creed for copy on the natural sciences, the social sciences, and the humanities.
- -To the enthusiastic staff in general, and specifically: to Wayne Bramlett for the title page sketch; to Anne Cheney for the copy on the faculty and administration; to George Jenkins for the dedication page copy; to typist Janet Conboy for stepping in at the last minute and staying for hours; to Walter Ellis for his day-to-day assistance and for writing the copy in the Greek section; to Ann McKnight and Lynn Faucett for their copy work, especially to Ann for her interpretive comment on campus events and to Lynn for her free verse that added so much to the annual.
- -Finally, to the administration of the college and the Student Government Association, without whom the yearbook would not be possible.
